Dear Fellow Student,

My name is Martin Schwemmer, and I am the President of the Corvinus Students' Union.

I am delighted that this publication has caught your attention because it allows us to introduce you to one of the most valuable aspects of our university, if not the most valuable. For years, promoting the flourishing of Student Organizations and Colleges for Advances Studies communities has been a key goal of the Students' Union, whether through scholarships or support via grant opportunities. We are driven by a clear conviction: responsibility, leadership, and community building are best realized within Student Organizations.

If you wish to be part of a socially vibrant and professionally inspiring environment, browse through this publication and explore your opportunities. The Student Organizations at Corvinus cover a wide range of professional focuses, and the professional colleges even offer on-campus housing. We encourage you to actively follow the recruitment processes in the fall and spring so that your university years can be enriched by a strong community where you can also grow professionally.

If we want to become the best, we must dare to innovate and collaborate—these are the core values of Student Organizations. Join us!

Martin Schwemmer

*President,
Students' Union*

ABOUT STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS

▣ Student Organizations at Corvinus

Corvinus University boasts unique student communities in Hungary, with over 50 Student Organizations and Colleges for Advanced Studies operating within the institution, significantly contributing to the enhancement of the Corvinus brand value. These organizations are incredibly diverse, covering a wide range of topics, from diplomacy, business informatics, and business, to religion, and even various forms of art. If you want to belong to a close-knit community and spend your time engaging in activities that match your interests, you're sure to find the right fit among the organizations at Corvinus. And if you don't find one that suits you, you have the opportunity to establish new organizations—after all, with a good idea, the sky's the limit.

▣ Activities

The Student Organizations and Colleges for Advanced Studies organize various events, courses, and camps, some of which are open to all students. At Corvinus, you can choose from a wide range of events on a weekly basis, most of which are organized by student groups. No topic is left unexplored, and the speakers are diverse and high-quality, as few decline an invitation from Corvinus students. The quality is always guaranteed, whether it's expos, balls, programs for high school students, sport events, or roundtable discussions that fill lecture halls with hundreds of attendees. Additionally, many programs are exclusive to the members of these organizations, with participation only available to them. These include team-building activities, internal courses, training sessions, self-development events, and initiation camps. This is one of the many reasons why joining these communities is worthwhile, as they offer opportunities that should not be missed.

□ Why Should You Apply?

By joining one of the organizations at the university, you can gain practical knowledge that complements the theoretical lessons learned in your university courses. This knowledge will be invaluable later, whether you are entering the job market or starting your own business. Additionally, within these organizations, you can gain experience in mid-level or senior management positions as early as 18-23 years old—experience that would typically only be available after 5-10 years of work in a company after graduation.

Beyond the wealth of professional knowledge and growth, you will also form lifelong friendships. Members of Student Organizations and Colleges for Advanced Studies often have a much larger network and stronger community support than their peers. Not to mention, while it can be challenging to form friendships in a university with thousands of students and hundreds in each program, joining an organization immediately makes you part of a community, helping you build some of the most lasting personal and friendly connections of your university years.

□ What Support and Opportunities Are Available for Student Organizations?

One of the primary objectives of the Students' Union is to support Student Organizations and Colleges for Advanced Studies. Each semester, the Students' Union accredits and categorizes these communities. Additionally, we have established the Student Organization Scholarship to recognize the work of Student Organization leaders.

We also provide infrastructural support for Student Organizations, which is reflected in the offices and storage areas on the Student Organization corridor. These spaces can be used for meetings, courses, and team-building activities, and are available for student use on most days of the year.

In September 2021, the Student Organization and College for Advanced Studies Expo was held live for the first time, organized by the Students' Union, and it has since become a semi-annual event. During this large-scale event, organizations have the opportunity to set up booths and engage with attendees. We advise you, as freshmen, to visit the event, ask questions, get to know the organizations, and find one that you would like to join. A lively atmosphere is guaranteed!

Furthermore, the Students' Union maintains an active relationship with the organizations. The Students' Union seeks feedback from Student Organization members on university and advocacy issues, involving them in the university's most active environment. Additionally, the Student Organization and College for Advanced Studies Department at the Students' Union assists with recruitment, official processes, community building, and answering questions, while also giving a voice to the organizations.

Overall, it can be said that no other hungarian university offers such a diverse and multifaceted environment of Student Organizations and Colleges for Advanced Studies. Students who engage in these organizations during their university years gain a significant advantage over their peers. These organizations provide both professional and community experiences, making university years unforgettable while also offering human connections and experiences that can shape one's entire life.

ESTABLISHING A STUDENT ORGANIZATION

To establish a new Student Organization, you need to participate in the accreditation process held once every semester by the Students' Union with your founding organization. For more detailed information about the accreditation, refer to Appendix I of the Corvinus Students' Union Statutes. Successful accreditation requires meeting the documentation and criteria specified in the Executive Board Resolution. The current requirements are outlined in this resolution each semester.

During the accreditation process, you can apply for one of four categories, and obtaining any of these categories allows your organization to officially operate as a recognized Student Organization by the university.

The call for accreditation is posted in the official Facebook group, and you can apply for categorization by filling out an online form. Depending on the category, the organization can gain various privileges, including: posting on the university's bulletin boards, reserving rooms for events, applying for material grants, eligibility for the Student Organization Scholarship, and access to an office on the Student Organization corridor.

If a student wants to join the Student Organizations Council Facebook group to fill out the form, they should contact the Students' Union's Head of Student Organizations and Colleges for Advanced Studies, currently Szonja Simon (<https://www.facebook.com/szonja.simon.33>).

For any other questions, feel free to reach out to the Corvinus Students' Union Facebook page!
